Recovery Support Function (RSF) Coordinating Structure

- The RSFs comprise the Recovery Framework's coordinating structure for providing recovery assistance by key sectors areas.
- Their purpose is to support local governments by providing a platform for addressing complex issues, facilitating problem solving, improving access to resources, and by fostering coordination among state, federal agencies, private sector, and NGO partners.
- The RSFs are organized into six manageable components and through the RSFs, relevant stakeholders and experts are brought together to identify and resolve recovery challenges.

NDRF Status and Next Steps

- The NDRF Work Group is waiting for guidance from the White House relating to firm dates for release of the NDRF.
- The current draft NDRF will have to undergo an Executive Secretary review process, and the final draft of the NDRF will be submitted to the President for approval.
- In the meantime, the Work Group is moving ahead with the development of the Recovery Support Function (RSF) Annexes that will support the NDRF coordinating structure concept.
